

Tsepiso Raseboku

My name is Tsepiso Raseboku, a young adult born and raised in Kliptown Soweto. Currently residing in Soweto, Johannesburg. Tsepiso is interning at Khanya College as a junior organizer in the Jozi Book Fair and Health Department. This is a very fluid position as I do administration, facilitation and catering for the children participating in our reading and writing program.

I went on to acquire a national N certificate in the field of financial Management. I am passionate about working with children and volunteered at PUSH, during my time in the organisation, I took a short course on child psychology as my interest in orphaned and vulnerable children grew.

Being part of a movement that focuses on children and many other members has been a learning curve for me, I get to understand how children are equally affected by issues that are raised by the working class.
